ABSTRACT

This catalog is designed as a supplement to resources available to students preparing for graduate and post-graduate programs in seminaries in North America. The current edition is an update of "Catalog V," which was prepared in 1998. The catalog's purpose is to give students overall descriptive information on potential sources of funding that fit their identified needs. Organized alphabetically, the catalog provides names, contact addresses, types of aid, deadlines, and descriptions of aid for numerous funding sources. (EV)

Preface

Catalog VI is designed as a supplement to the resources available to students preparing for graduate and post-graduate programs in the seminaries of North America.

The current edition is an update of Catalog "V" which was prepared in 1998. The Association of Theological Schools joined in that effort. Prior editions reflect the commitment of the Office of Financial Aid for Studies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to support their students and others with a catalog of loans, grants, and scholarships. Catalog VI marks a new direction in the preparation of these resources. For the first time, they are available on a CD.

The purpose of Catalog VI is to give students overall descriptive information on potential sources of funding that fit their identified needs. It is then the responsibility of the individual to contact the sponsoring organization of the fundng program to request more detailed information, including application materials and deadlnes.

In order to make this catalog more valuable, the names and e-mail addresses of the principal offices involved in the revision have been listed as have other useful websites to explore additional resources.

Collaborative Research Grants
Deadline: August 1

These grants are intended to stimulate cooperative research among scholars in several institutions, with a focus on a clearly identified research project. Grants can provide funds for networking and communication. They may also be used for interdisciplinary work with scholars outside the field of religion, especially when such work shows promise of continuing beyond the year funded. In addition, grants may be used to support small research conferences. Conference proposals will be considered only if they are designed primarily to advance research. Scholars in small institutions, departments, or programs without research support, and scholars who are institutionally unaffiliated are especially encouraged to apply. A group must apply through an AAR member designated as the project director; not all participants need to hold AAR membership. Awards range from $500 to $5,000.

Grants to Individuals
Deadline: August 1

These grants provide support for important aspects of research, such as travel to archives and libraries, research assistance, field work, and release time, for which funds are not otherwise available. Awards range from $500 to $5,000. Funds are not provided for dissertation research nor for travel by members to attend the AAR/SBL Annual Meeting. Scholars in small institutions, departments, or programs without research support, and scholars who are not affiliated with an institution are especially encouraged to apply. Applicants must be members of the American Academy of Religion.

American Association for Marriage and Family Therapy

1100 17th Street NW, 10th Floor
Washington, DC 20036-4601

Minority Fellowship Program
Deadline: January

Applicants for the Minority Fellowship Program must be citizens of the United States or Canada who are enrolled in university graduate education programs of post-degree institutions that provide training in marital and family therapy. Applicants must be members of racial/ethnic minority groups who show promise in and commitment to a career in marital and family therapy education, research, or practice. Application deadlines are in January and award amounts are usually $1,500.

American Association of University Women

American Dissertation Fellowship
Deadline: November 15

Dissertation fellowships are available to women who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents, are in the final year of a doctoral degree program, and will complete the writing of dissertations by June 30, 2002. There are no restrictions on the field of study. Applicants must have completed all course work, passed all required preliminary examinations, and received approval for their research proposals or plan by November 15, 2000. Scholars who are engaged in research on gender issues are encouraged to apply. The fellowship provides a stipend of $15,000 for the one-year term of appointment

Career Development Grants
Deadline: December 15

Career Development grants will provide up to $5,000 to women who, through higher education, are reentering the work force, making a career change, or advancing their current career. Women holding a bachelor's degree who seek additional credentials for career development are invited to apply. Applicants should be working toward a master's degree or specialized training in a technical or professional field—funds are not available for doctoral work—and should have received their most recent degree before June 30, 1997. Special consideration will be given to AAUW members and to those pursuing course work that will prepare them for careers that are nontraditional for women. Women members of racial/ethnic minority groups are encouraged to apply. Applications are available between August 1 and December 1, 2000.

International Fellowships
Deadline: December 15

International Fellowships are awarded for full-time study or research in the United States to women who are not U.S. citizens or permanent residents. Both graduate and postgraduate study is supported. Applicants must have earned the equivalent of a U.S. bachelor's degree before December 31, 2000. Criteria for selection include outstanding academic ability, professional potential, and the importance of the field of study to changing the lives of women and girls in the country of origin. The fellowships provide a stipend of $16,500 for the one-year term of appointment which begins July 1, 2001. Applicants for the International Fellowships may simultaneously apply for grants to support community action projects to be implemented in the fellow's home country in the year immediately following the fellowship year. Community action projects must have direct impact on improving the lives of women and girls in the recipient's home country. Preference will be given to projects that relate to the fellow's primary area of study. These supplemental community action grants provide an additional $5,000 to $7,000 in the year following the fellowship year.

Through its endowed Financial Aid Program, the Educational Ministries of the American Baptist Churches supports American Baptist students pursuing educational opportunities. The program offers assistance to students enrolled in undergraduate programs, graduate studies, and seminaries. Financial assistance is also available to persons serving as pastors and in other church vocations, in order to encourage continued growth in ministry skills.

All recipients of American Baptist financial aid must be:

- members of an American Baptist church for at least one year prior to application;
- enrolled at an accredited educational institution in the U.S. or Puerto Rico;
- citizens of the United States.

Marion T. Burr Scholarship
Deadline: May 31

Native American students enrolled full-time in college or seminary who are pursuing a career in human services are eligible for this scholarship.

Ellen Cushing Scholarship
Deadline: April 1

Female graduate students preparing for a human service or church-related vocation are eligible for a grant of up to $2,000 through the Ellen Cushing Scholarship, with preference given to students active in their school, church, or region. A letter of nomination from a faculty member or administrator is required. Seminarian Support Program recipients are not usually considered for this scholarship.

Doctoral (Ph.D.) Study Grant
Deadline: March 31

American Baptist students who have completed at least one year of Ph.D. studies may apply for a one-time doctoral study grant of $3,000. Students must plan to teach in a college or seminary, in a field of study directly related to preparing American Baptist ministerial leaders. Applicants must demonstrate academic achievement in the first year(s) of doctoral studies. D. Min. students are not eligible.

American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A.

Graduate Loans
Deadline: May 31

Low interest loans are available to American Baptist graduate and undergraduate students. Full-time undergraduates may borrow up to $500 per year (four year maximum of $2,000). Full-time graduate students may borrow $1,000 annually (three year maximum of $3,000). Part-time students are eligible for half of these amounts.

Hispanic Students Grants
Deadline: August 1

American Baptist Hispanic students pursuing an undergraduate or first professional degree in a seminary may apply for a renewable $500 grant. Applicants must demonstrate financial need and plan to serve in a church-related ministry. These grants may not be combined with other Educational Ministries aid.

Individual Seminarian Grants
Deadline: May 31

American Baptist students attending a seminary not related to American Baptist Churches USA are eligible for grants in the amount of $500. Seminarians may apply for these grants each academic year for up to three years. Seminarians must be enrolled at least two-thirds time in one of the following first professional degree programs: M.Div., M.C.E., M.A.C.E., or M.R.E.

Minority Student Scholarships
Deadline: May 31

Freshman minority students attending an American Baptist-related college or university full-time may apply for a $1,000 scholarship, to be paid directly to the school and credited toward the recipient's tuition. Preference is given to persons preparing for careers in church leadership or human services. Recipients must maintain satisfactory academic standing. This scholarship cannot be combined with other funding from American Baptist Scholarship programs.

Lilly Theological Research Grants Program: Faculty Fellowships
Deadline: January 5

The Theological Research Grants Program will award approximately 12 fellowships of up to $20,000 each for substantial research projects reflecting high scholarly standards. The Faculty Fellowships are designed to assist faculty members who offer well-developed plans for conducting a significant research project during a sabbatical or other leave of at least six months. Grants are intended as salary and benefit replacement, if needed, and additional funds for direct research expenses. The Fellowshis Program encourages applications from scholars in all disciplines and areas of theological research, both traditional and non-traditional, and at any stage in the scholars' academic careers. Awards will be made for research projects that demonstrate special promise of quality, significance for theological education, and applicability to the life of faith communities and contemporary society. It is strongly encouraged that the Fellow's institution support the research by continuing at least partial salary and benefits of the recipient. Applicants must be full-time faculty members at ATS accredited and candidate schools and must have a research leave of at least one term from all teaching and institutional responsibilities during the 2001-2002 academic year.

Lilly Theological Research Grants Program: Small Grants
Deadline: January 5

The Small Grants segment of the Theological Research Grants Program is designed to assist scholars not necessarily on leave from their institutions but nonetheless engaged in well-designed and significant research projects. The program provides grants of up to $5,000 to approximately six recipients each year. The grants may be used for travel to special collections, gathering or processing data, specialized software, or similar direct expenses related to the project. Applications for these grants may be made by individuals or by groups of scholars engaged in planning an important collaborative project. Applicants must be full-time faculty members at ATS accredited and candidate schools.

Henry Luce III Fellows in Theology
Deadline: December 1

Research Associate and Visiting Lecturer Program
Deadline: November 15

The Women's Studies in Religion Program fosters critical inquiry into the interaction between religion and gender, throughout the world's religions. Every year, the Program appoints several full-time Research Associates to spend a year at Harvard Divinity School pursuing a book-length project on women and religion. Each scholar is appointed to the faculty as a member of one of the Divinity School's departments: Hebrew Bible, New Testament, History of Christianity, History of Religion, Theology, Ethics, or Religion and Society. As such, each designs and teaches a one-semester course related to her research topic and delivers a lecture in the Spring semester than deepens understanding about that topic. Positions are open to candidates with doctorates in religion or with primary competence in other fields of the humanities or social sciences, and to leading professionals with equivalent achievements. The group of five scholars usually includes at least one international scholar, one scholar working on a non-western tradition, one scholar of Judaism, and one minority scholar. Candidates are selected according to the quality of their research proposal, in which both religion and gender should function as critical categories of analysis. Associates will receive a salary of $40,000 and benefits for a full-time appointment extending from September to June 30.

Fulbright Scholarships
Deadline: October 25

The Student Fulbright Program is designed to give recent B.S./B.A. graduates, master's and doctoral candidates, and young professionals and artists opportunities for personal development and international experience. Most grantees plan their own programs; projects may include university coursework, independent library or field research, special projects in the social or life sciences, or a combination. Most Fulbright grants are awarded for one academic year. Full grants generally provide round-trip transportation; language or orientation courses, where appropriate; tuition, in some cases; book and research allowances; maintenance for the academic year based on living costs in the host country; and supplemental health and accident insurance. Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application and must hold a B.A. or equivalent before the beginning date of the grant. Applicants may not hold a doctoral degree at the time of application.

Christian Faith and Life Sabbatical Grants
Deadline: December 31

Louisville Institute's Christian Faith and Life Initiative seeks to support efforts to bring the resources of the ethical, liturgical, and doctrinal wisdom of the Christian faith into closer relation to the daily lives of practicing Christians and to describe more fully how the Christian faith is actually experienced by contemporary Christians of various ages, circumstances, and traditions. The Sabbatical Grants Program seeks to: 1) identify scholars already working in this area, 2) encourage other scholars to develop research projects which would advance our thinking in this area, and 3) generate a broader conversation in the American scholarly community about the nature of and challenges to Christian faith and life in the contemporary world. The Program is concerned principally with understanding and enriching contemporary religious life by an appreciative recovery and critical reappropriation of the riches of the Christian tradition. Applicants for projects of a more historical nature should make a clear case for the contemporary implications of their research. Conversely, applicants focusing on contemporary religious life should clearly relate their research to the history of Christian faith. The Institute will award up to eight grants of $45,000 each academic year to applicants holding the Ph.D. or Th.D. who are employed full-time by an accredited academic institution. The awards are designed to support a full academic year of sabbatical research and writing, and awardees are to be released from all teaching responsibilities during the award year. Partial awards are not made. The Program has no residence requirement but in the year of their award all fellows are expected to participate in one conference or consultation at the Louisville Institute.

Dissertaton Fellowships
Deadline: January 31

The Louisville Institute will award up to ten Dissertation Fellowships of $16,000 each for 12 months beginning in September. Eligible dissertation projects should promise a significant contribution to the study of American religion. Preference will be given to those proposals that address the current program priorities of the Louisville Institute: 1) Christian faith and life, 2) religious institutions, and 3) pastoral leadership. Proposals on other issues of importance to the churches are also welcome. Applicants must be candidates for the Ph.D. or Th.D. degree who have fulfilled all pre-dissertation requirements by January 31, 2001 and expect to complete the dissertation by the end of the 2001-2002 academic year.

Summer Stipend Fellowships
Deadline: November 1

The Louisville Institute will award up to ten Summer Stipend Feliowships to support postdoctoral research projects. Preference will be given to those proposals that address the current program priorities of the Louisville Institute: 1) Christian faith and life, 2) religiouis institutions, and 3) pastoral leadership. Proposals on certain other issues are also welcome. These Fellowships provide a stipend of $10,000 for the ten-week research and writing period. Applicants should have completed a Ph.D. or Th.D. and be currently employed by an accredited academic institution.

Jennings Randolph Program Peace Scholar Dissertation Fellowships
Deadline: November 15

The United States Institute of Peace offers support for dissertation research through the Jennings Randolph Program for International Peace. These Peace Fellowships are intended to encourage outstanding doctoral students to undertake dissertation research and writing on vital subjects that concern the sources and nature of violent international conflict and the full range of ways to end or prevent conflict and to sustain peace. Dissertation projects from a broad range of disciplines are welcome. Applicants may be citizens of any country who are doctoral students at a university in the United States and who have completed all requirements for the doctoral degree except the dissertation by the time the fellowship begins. The stipend is $14,000 for a twelve-month period and work may be conducted at the scholar's own university or any other appropriate site.

Phone: 219-631-7339 • www: <//www.nd.edu/~cprelig/cpr.html>

Extraordinary Fellowship
Deadline: December 1

One Extraordinary Fellowship will be offered to a scholar who might not qualify for one of the other fellowships offered by the Center—foreign scholars or those outside the field of philosophy, theologians who want to enrich their understanding of philosophy of religion and theistic philosophy, humanists from other fields who could benefit by a deeper grasp of the sort of philosophy practiced at the Center, and scholars interested in a theistic approach to psychology, sociology, economics, and other subjects. The appointment provides a stipend of $40,000 for the academic year.

University of Notre Dame, Erasmus Institute

1124 Flanner Hall
Notre Dame, IN 46556
Phone: 219-631-9346 • www: <http://www.nd.edu/~erasmus>

Fellowships
Deadline: February 1

The Erasmus Institute supports research grounded in Catholic intellectual traditions and focused on significant issues in contemporary scholarship. Its mission is not to advance study of the church or Catholic theology as such, but rather to bring resources from Catholic thought of any period to bear on current problems in the humanities and social sciences. Though concerned primarily with the Catholic intellectual heritage, the institute will support complementary research deriving from other Christian intellectual traditions as well as from Jewish and Islamic ones. It invites the participation of scholars without regard to religious belief. The Institute offers three types of fellowships: dissertation fellowships for students in the writing phase; postdoctoral fellowships for recent Ph.D.s and untenured faculty; and fellowships for more senior faculty. Fellowships are tenable for a semester or a full academic year, and fellows are expected to remain in residence for the term of appointment. The fellowships provide a private office, telephone, access to the Notre Dame computer network, limited photocopying and fax facilities, and library privileges. Fellowships are both stipendiary and nonstipendiary. Dissertation fellowships provide $14,000; postdoctoral fellowships, $35,000; junior and senior fellowship stipends vary with the fellow's salary at the time of application.

filming, taping, and computer services. Applicants must have completed all predissertation requirements in any field of study at graduate schools in the United States by October 29, 2000 and must expect to complete their dissertations by the summer of 2002. Applications mailed from abroad must be postmarked by October 25; the deadline for postmarking of completed U.S. applications is November 8.

Andrew W. Mellon Fellowships in Humanistic Studies
Deadline: December 21

To help exceptionally promising students to prepare for careers in teaching and the scholarship of humanistic studies and to encourage graduate study in the humanities this award is offered to citizens of the U.S. who are beginning graduate work in a Ph.D. program. The award provides a stipend of $14,750 plus full tuition and fees for the first year of study; it covers only the first year of study in a Ph.D. program and is not available at any other level. In requesting program information and applications, interested parties should state their full name, mailing address and telephone, physical address in March, undergraduate institution including city and state, undergraduate major, year of graduation, intended discipline in graduate school and e-mail address (if available). Eighty awards are given annually.

Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships
Deadline: December 1

The Charlotte W. Newcombe Doctoral Dissertation Fellowships are designed to encourage original and significant study of ethical or religious values in all fields of the humanities and social sciences. In addition to topics in religious studies or in ethics (philosophical or religious,) dissertations might consider the ethical implications of foreign policy, the values influencing political decisions, the moral codes of other cultures, and religious or ethical issues reflected in history or literature. Applicants must be candidates for Ph.D. or Th.D. degrees in doctoral programs at graduate schools in the United States, must fulfill all predissertation requirements by November 26, 2000, including approval of the dissertation prospectus, and expect to complete their dissertations by August 2002. These awards are not intended to finance field work or research but rather than last full year of dissertation writing. Critical editions, biographies, or annotated texts are not generally acceptable. Candidates should apply only if ethical or religious values are central to their dissertations. Approximately 35 nonrenewable fellowships of $15,500 will be awarded. Graduate schools will be asked to waive tuition for Newcombe Fellows. Applicants who have held another of the Foundation's dissertation fellowships or a similar dissertation year award are not eligible to apply. Applications being mailed from outside the United States or Canada must be postmarked by November 22; completed U.S. applications must be postmarked by December 6.

Congressional Fellowships on Women and Public Policy
Deadline: June 15

This annual fellowship program places graduate students in Congressional offices and on strategic committee staffs with an eye to encouraging more effective participation by women in the formation of public policy at all levels, to examining how policies affect women and men differently, and to encouraging the formulation of policy options that recognize the needs of all people. Congressional Fellows spend one academic year (January to September) at the graduate or professional level working 30 hours per week in their assigned offices. Fellows receive a stipend of $1,150 per month for the nine-month term of appointment, plus an additional $500 to cover health insurance. WREI will also reimburse fellows up to a maximum of $1,500 for the cost of three hours tuition at their home institutions.

World Alliance of Reformed Churches

Department of Theology
150 Route de Ferney
1211 Geneva 2
SWITZERLAND

Scholarships

The aim of this program is to broaden understanding within the Reformed "family" and to deepen ecumenical commitment. About 37 theological scholarships in Asia, Europe, and North America are awarded annually by 23 theological seminaries/faculties participating in the program. The program primarily is intended for postgraduate theological studies. The majority of scholarships offered in the United States are not available to U.S. citizens. Scholarships are not provided by the World Alliance of Reformed Churches but the World Alliance of Reformed Churches links candidates to the seminaries participating in the program. Applications may be requested from June through September through the responsible officer of World Alliance of Reformed Churches at member churches. Direct individual requests are not entertained.

World Council of Churches

475 Riverside Drive, Room 915
New York, NY 10115

Theological Scholarships
Deadline: July 31, November 30

The World Council of Churches provides scholarship assistance for candidates recommended by churches and church-related organizations, which select according to their own needs and priorities, rather than for individuals primarily wishing to further their own educations. Correlation between the proposed course of study and the future services to the church and community is therefore an important aspect of the application. Applicants must be recommended by a church or church-related organization and should have a basic seminary degree. Applicants must commit to returning to their home country upon completion of study to take up the task for which the study was conducted. Candidates already studying abroad are ineligible to apply. Interested parties should contact their own denominational office for program information.
